The Archdiocese of Baltimore retained the services of Kinetics MarCom to help it evolve its communication programs. The Archdiocese supervises 73 schools and is the largest private school system in Maryland. Kinetics was tasked with helping the Archdiocese's communication team to increase the effectiveness and reach of the programs. Kinetics worked with the Archdiocese to move from a traditional top-down media strategy to one that was highly targeted and employed significantly more data and digital assets. In addition, Kinetics was asked to consult on the development of all creative messages, so there was synergy between the communications plan and the messages.
